Ko te Rangatira O te Awa

Author: Na Nicolette Parsons

Illustrator: Na Emma Hughes-Martinet I whakaahua

This is a fully exclusive Te Reo version of 'The Boss of the River' lovingly rewritten in Te Reo by Dallas Harema. We say rewritten rather than translated as Dallas explains, it is not always possible to translate word for word into Te Reo. Sometimes it may be a feeling or an idea that needs to be conveyed. The result is a beautiful Te Reo book that now sits in the Auckland Library Special Collections Room as well as many other homes and schools in New Zealand.

Bottoms, Grandma's & Random Superpowers

Author: Nicolette Parsons

Illustrator: Andy Knopp

Bottoms, Grandmas & Random Superpowers is a creative book in full colour - 228mm x 152mm (9x7inch) - thoughts from a young kiwi boy and how he sees and interacts with his extended family. It is an early reader with snippets (short chapters). With humour to keep the reader involved and bright colourful fun illustrations, there is something for everyone! All children nowadays need more 'chats' with Grandma or maybe their Great Uncle! What Superpowers might they have?! It is interspersed with thoughts and questions allowing the reader to think about their own talents and skills, including emotional skills and how these can benefit themselves and others! These 'Adult' thoughts will also give any teacher, parent, counsellor or teacher aide, the tools to encourage the all important conversations around individual strengths while also encouraging interaction and thinking around extended family or significant adult members.
