Waiting To Be Well

Author: Angela C Millen

Illustrator:

Pushing through another day, you may wonder whether life will always feel so lonely, purposeless and difficult. Does anyone else share my struggle? Can there be good amidst this unravelling of body and mind? Is there anything I can look forward to? In the style of letters to a friend, Angela C Millen shares from her own wrestling through three years of post-viral chronic fatigue and the surprise of recovery. Offering company, comfort and courage, she invites you to see goodness in your own story, whether in sickness or in health.

For King and Kingdom: Recovering the Lost Paradigm

Author: Darren Green

Illustrator:

For 2000 years, we have preached a gospel focused on being saved from hell and going to heaven. We have made Jesus our Savior and Lord but not our King. Despite the Kingdom of God being the most important message of all time that Jesus spoke on, like the elephant in the room, we have simply ignored it or treated it as an abstract concept. For King and Kingdom recovers this lost paradigm. Bringing to the fore a lost King and Kingdom, it challenges us to consider how we should be living our daily lives accordingly within it.

Redemptive Grief: Finding Healing from Traumatic Loss and Unresolved Grief

Author: Gaynor Lincoln

Illustrator:

“He attempted to take his own life and isn’t expected to live.” No one ever wants to hear those words. How then do we then deal with the perplexing and painful feelings deep within us? We can stuff them deep where they fester, spurting out to cover those who awkwardly offer help. Or we can courageously journey through grief, experiencing God’s redemptive, healing presence and a deeper inner freedom. We can learn how God transforms grief into a redemptive experience, which rekindles hope and brings transformation. Empowered, we reach out to other wounded amongst us and wandering, wounded souls adrift in the world.
